Description

Our partitioning systems is a pre-manufactured flexible system made with steel and is primarily used within industry to improve the working environment for employees.

A poor working environment in a company can result in reduced productivity. Poor environment could be unacceptable noise, EMP (electro magnetic pulses), dirt or dust. These are problems can be solved by simply creating a partition between the unacceptable working environment and your workers.

A movable partition wall can easily be altered when there is a need to change the lay-out of a factory or office. In the range there are also pre-manufactured movable offices available, delivered ready for use wherever there is a demand for a workshop office.
